For those desiring covetable resort-style living in West Palm Beach, newcomer Olara will soon set an elevated precedence along the Intracoastal Waterway in 2026. Renowned architecture firm Arquitectonica conceived the 26-story condo tower along North Flagler Drive to seamlessly blend with its waterfront backdrop.

“Differentiated by its unique curved corners and sleek glass design, the building’s street frontage is animated by a community-accessible commercial space that urbanizes the setting,” says Bernardo Fort-Brescia, founding principal of Arquitectonica, who collaborated with interior design studio Gabellini Sheppard Associates.

Inspired by yacht architecture, residences will vaunt kitchens with Gaggenau appliances and spa-like bathrooms with oak vanities crowned with Breccia Capraia marble. Owners can look forward to indulging in rich amenities such as a holistic sixth-floor suite, coastal restaurant, deluxe fitness center and spa, two pools and a residents-only marina.
